My Views

by Gary Ayres

18 December 2006

I'd like to share a couple of views with y'all; maybe you can see where many of us Southerners come to our beliefs. Maybe many Southerners can also see where some of their own might have sold them out.

Ever since the War of Northern Aggression, Southern citizens have been subjugated to a lesser people. This is not only my view, but substantiated in how the Southerners have been treated since that unholy war. The records of their enemy proves it.

All one must do is read. Read with an open mind and know what the United States was created for; certainly not what it has become.

One way to take away a people's culture is to take away their pride. The US government has done well in that, not only with the Southern people, but with anyone it has gone against. How does it do this? By taking away their heroes and their leaders.

Look at the Indians in North America. The government not only defeated them in battle, but degraded the Indians, from the children to the highest Chief. In doing so, they took away the Indian's pride. Without pride, for what reason do they have to hold up their heads?

How many people have scavenged the Indian burial grounds to look for riches with no care taken for those burial sites? Those burial grounds were and are sacred to the Indians, but simply riches for others.

Now let's take the Southern people. Since the Northern War, the government has done its best to denigrate the Southern people and their new country, the Confederate States of America. The leaders of the victors have made all the Southern people less than those in the North. They have told the lies that our leaders and forefathers were traitors and murderers.

In fact, it is the other way around. All one must do is read. Read with an open mind and know what the United States was created for; certainly not what it has become.

Look at other countries. Look at Russia. Is the case with Russia not similar to what the US has done to Southerners? When Russia took over the Mongols, they would not let the Mongols revere Genghis Khan. The Mongols had pride in their once leader. This was a threat to Russia, so it took away what the Mongols held dear. They took away their pride.

Today, the Southern people are losing everything that represents their past and, they even losing what they have made today. School names are changed, street names are changed, and even more lies about their people are told.

NASCAR is a Southern event. A sport created by the Southerner, and now it is taken away because of the money it generates. Northern greed has once again raised its ugly head. They want what we made.

In all fairness, greed does not belong only to those of the North and the US government. The South has many of its own who have bought into the materialism of the North. They no longer revere our dead or what we are about; they only know about money. Money, one of the roots of evil.

Look at the CSS Hunley. In many a ways, it was the burial site of those brave servicemen. As all servicemen know, once they go into battle, they know they may never return. Those of the Hunley were no different. The removal of the Hunley could have only been for one reason. Greed! Greed for actual artifacts that might be uncovered and displayed for money, or even sold. There was no other reason for it being brought to shore. Oh yes, you will hear that it was educational, to learn about the Hunley. But it really means to disturb what was a gravesite.

Look at the famous story about Lt. Dixon's coin, said to have saved his life at the Battle of Shiloh. The coin was suspected of being on Lt. Dixon's body in the Hunley. There were so many outsiders fixated on this one aspect of the Hunley that they could not wait to get their hands on it. There was no reason to get that coin but for greed. Where is it now? I don't believe it is with his remains or with his next of kin. It is in someone's safe. Replicas have been made. All this for money from the dead.

Those leading the charge of raising the Hunley and rummaging through the remains of the men who manned her are Southerners, the very people who should understand what subjugation is all about. From political leaders to leaders in Southern-heritage organizations, they sold out for the Yankee buck and played into the hands of the establishment of the Northern government.

To break a civilization, a country, or a people isn't done in one battle or war. It takes years to break a people's pride. It is gradual, and most will not see it, for they have bought into it. Once they have, it is most likely too late.

Breaking peoples' pride isn't just here, it is part of the New World Order, One World Government, or whatever names you want to name it: globalism.

Make no mistake, this globalism has been in the making for many years. The US government laid waste to Missouri in the War of Northern Aggression. Sherman did the same a few years later in Georgia and the east coast. He then used these tactics on the Indians. Now they are used on you.

These tactics are used today, but not in a military way, at least not yet. Look at the change of money in Europe, the Euro. Look at the Eminent Domain law just passed in the US, and the Patriot Act. What about the new highway system being undertaken in the US. A highway system larger than anything the US has seen, between the Gulf of Mexico and Canada. The highway system that will reach to Kansas City, and be the major hub to direct mobilization.

This modern day takeover is just one more way of taking your pride away. And from taking from us what our forefathers wanted for us, a Republic.