Temperatures Arising

by Herbert Hayes

20 October 2006

My Scots-Irish blood, tainted with various other elements of humanity, has boiled over yet again, my hemoglobin delivering excess oxygen to my warrior's brain, pushing me out of my slumbering pacifist mode.

I am now reaching for the stars as I wake to fight and protect my family, my culture, and my progeny's future.

What caused this awakening?

Nothing more than the realization that tree-hugging, green-peace, global-warming, alarmist liberals are no different than Muslims bent on destroying the West. In my mind, they are absolutely the same.

I would prefer warmer days to another ice age. Longer growing seasons, warmer days, and ladies in bikinis win out every time.

They are my enemy.

Filling up my gas-guzzler on a cold day is my way of contributing more hydrocarbons to the atmosphere in an attempt to bring on warmer days. I would prefer warmer days to another ice age. Longer growing seasons, warmer days, and ladies in bikinis win out every time.

I base my opinion on the global warming alarmist propaganda that seems to find its way daily into the national media. The freaks involved in this propaganda campaign have been making our lives difficult and have increased the cost of living as they push their fearful fantasy to the limits of social acceptance.

Our government is full of these appeasers, so called statesmen, who cry wolf as they fill up their back pockets with environmentalist monies and bloat the bureaucracies designed to destroy our way of life. They are my enemy, for they have unwittingly joined forces with those bent on destroying my culture and way of life.

These same global-warming theocrats see nothing wrong with, in their words, the "religion of peace" or Muslim faith. They want to appease our Muslim friends, the enemies of the West. Embrace them. Try to understand them. Help them.

The alarmist liberals attack some in our government and conservative organizations who happen to point out that we are in a holy war with the Muslim world. They call us racists and worse. But they obviously failed in learning their world history and will only help in the destruction of the Western world.

Therefore, I must rise to the occasion and let my enemies know that I will fight to keep my family and its future out of the hands of the global-warming appeasers and sword-welding Muslims.

I will do all I can to protect my loved ones and beloved culture from fading away into the historical abyss of failed civilizations.

I look forward to the battles ahead, using my superior warrior's instinct for cultural survival. I will win, one way or another.

May God have pity on their souls as they descend into the hell they so desperately wanted to avoid.
